

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. It came on me gradually. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up at one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, and I was soon entirely cured." He Felt Sick.

A small boy who accompanied his mother to church on a recent Sunday grew pretty restless before the sermon was over. He finally crept up close to her and whispered: "Mamma, mamma, I feel sick." "Do you?" asked his mother, rather anxiously. "Why, where or how do you feel sick?" "Well," replied the youngster "I feel homesick."

Value in Lumber Residue.

Paper from the waste woods and waste products of wood leads all else in value from lumber residue. Once only the white woods were regarded as of value for white paper, but with the bleaching processes of the present there is no limitation of color. Trees of the pine family, however, work up more easily and economically. From these waste papers in turn paper box material is made and chemical elements resulting from the making of paper from wood are turned to various accounts.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING

THIS YOUNG WOMAN APPEARED IN VAIN FOR HELP.

When Hope had Almost Settled Into Utter Despair Relief Came from an Unexpected Source.

Mrs. Emma Heidebreder, of No. 1323 Joy street, Burlington, Iowa, whose husband is an employee of the Rand Lumber Co., tells a story of pitiable suffering: "For about five years," she says, "I had a host of physical ills that kept me invalid and puzzled the doctors. Some of them thought I was going into consumption. At times I was so weak that I could not comb my hair or even wash my face. Then excruciating pains ran suddenly up my thigh and I had to be carried to bed screaming in my agony. I could no longer do my work and the drain upon my husband's purse was very heavy. I craved food but what I ate only gave me discomfort. My liver was torpid, and often I had to be carried to the door for air to save me from suffocating.

"The worst was the pain which seemed as if my thigh were being pushed out of my body. The best doctors could do was to deaden it by narcotics. Once they thought I could not live for more than two days. In one of my worst attacks, a friend said: 'Why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? They are the only thing that ever helped my rheumatism.'

"I took his advice. After using one box I felt better, and I continued to use the pills for three or four months with steady improvement until I was well. For four years I have been able to do all my household work, and no longer have to take medicine for any serious trouble. I gave one box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to a man on crutches because of rheumatism and advised my market woman to buy a box when she was complaining of the same trouble. I heard that he was soon able to throw his crutches away, and she told me she had got rid of the rheumatism by the use of one box and could not thank me too much."

Testimony multiplies as to the magnificent curative powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart and all forms of weakness in either male or female. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world.

It's a good thing for some people that the necessities of life do not include brains.

WITH THE VETERANS

"There, Never Mind." Years have passed, but still I hear them. Mother's words. "There, never mind." Time serves only to enquire them. To me as it flies. I find. Mother's gone, but still I often find myself when trouble's nigh, Half expecting her to soothe. It is in the days gone by.

Years, but still I see her rocking. Holding me upon her breast. Both arms about me loving. Setting all my fears at rest. Years, but still I hear her telling. Me in voice so low and kind. While my tears are swiftly welled. Soothing like "There, never mind." All my boyish troubles vanished. When she spoke those words to me. All my tears were quickly banished. Soon I shambled peacefully. Off I wish when worst beset me. And grim worries now I find. That old Father Time would let me. Hear her say, "There, never mind." —Bride Dudley in Kansas City Star.

Sheridan's Great Feat.

For personal gallantry, military skill and just confidence in the courage and patriotism of his troops displayed by Philip H. Sheridan on the 19th of October, 1864, at Cedar Run, where, under the blessing of Providence, his routed army was reorganized, a great national disaster averted and a brilliant victory achieved over the rebels, Philip H. Sheridan is appointed major-general in the United States army.

So runs the order for the promotion which the president of the United States, Abraham Lincoln, issued to honor the hero of Cedar Run and Winchester. That he had averted a great national disaster was everywhere conceded throughout the entire north. The valley of the Shenandoah had been overrun by the armies of the confederacy. Washington was in a state of chronic terror in fear of the attacks of the enemy. The way was open, and if the confederate were not soon repulsed, the attack upon the capital seemed inevitable. Early's army had been re-enforced by a part of the command of Longstreet. Philip Sheridan had been given orders by the war department to clear the enemy from the Shenandoah and to thereby relieve the country of the strain of the fear of an attack upon Washington.

On the 18th of October, 1864, Early, fording the Shenandoah river, approached rapidly and unobserved upon the army of Sheridan. Sheridan had been called to Washington and was even then returning, having reached the town of Winchester, twenty miles from Cedar Run. Under cover of the fog, which had risen from the river, and the darkness, Early's army approached to within 600 yards of the left flank of the union army, which was formed by the troops of Gen. Crook.

The eighth corps was rolled up, the exposed center gave way and almost instantly the entire army was in retreat. Madly they rushed from the scene of the surprise, panic-stricken and demoralized.

Sheridan in Winchester had heard the sound of the battle. Mounting the horse which had already carried him through so many battles, he spurred him toward the place where he knew that his troops should be. On the Cedar Run road he met the first of the retreating army. Standing in his saddle, he shouted to them: "Face the other way, boys; we are going back."

The presence of Little Phil restored the confidence they had lost. His belief in them gave them a belief in themselves. His courage inspired their courage. His enthusiasm roused theirs. Back they turned to the field from which they had been so ingloriously routed.

The tide of battle turned; the victorious enemy had waited to plunder the camps. Surprised as had been their foes a short time before, they were completely routed. The retreat of Cedar Run had been turned to a glorious victory simply because a leader did not know when he was beaten, and refusing to acknowledge defeat, had wrested from adversity a victory that won for him honors and commendation and fame. "Sheridan's Ride" is of imperishable fame in the annals of American military achievements. But even greater than his fame for personal bravery is the characterization that Lincoln phrased, "just confidence in the courage and patriotism of his troops."

Battles Followed by Rain.

The records show that the following battles or actions were either accompanied or closely followed by rain: Battle of Logan's Crossroads; battle of Fort Donelson; battle of Pea Ridge, Ark.; attack and capture of Roanoke Island; capture of Newbern, N. fighting on the Chickahominy; battle of Hanover Courthouse; battle of Fair Oaks, or Seven Pines; gunboat firing on James river; artillery firing in front of Hooker's Seven Days' Fight; battle of Gaines's Mill; battle of Savage's Station; battle of Malvern Hill; battle of Cedar Mountain, Aug. 9, 1862; heavy artillery firing at Kelley's Fort and Rappahannock Station; fight at Bristow Station; second battle of Bull Run; battle of Chantilly; battle of Antietam; battle of Perryville, or Chaplin's Creek, Ky.; battle of Prairie Grove, Ark.; capture of Van Buren, Ark.; battle of Murfreesboro, or Stone River; battle of Fredericksburg, Va.; battle of Chancellorsville; battle of Beverly Ford, Va.; battle of Gettysburg, Pa.; affair at Mine Run; destruction of Confederate steamer Nashville; battle of Carney's Bridge, La.; assault on Port Hudson; Porter's passage of the Vicksburg batteries; battle of Raymond, Miss.; naval action off Charleston Harbor; attack on defenses of Secessionville; attack on Morris Island; attack on Gen. Terry on James Island; bombardment of Fort Wagner; attack on Fort Sumter; battle of Mission Ridge; Red River campaign; battle of Marks Mill; battle of Dallas, Ga.; battle of the Wilderness; battle of Spotsylvania Courthouse; battle of North Anne River; battle of Cold Harbor, or Bethesda Church; battle of Hatcher's Run; fight at Dublin Ridge; battle of Newmarket; battle of the Cedars; the great battle of Nashville, and many others.

At the last reunion of the Army of the Cumberland a very singular state of affairs was developed by a letter to the society from Whitelaw Reid, challenging the correctness of the official inscription upon the monuments to the Ohio regiments and batteries erected by the State of Ohio, through its Battlefield Commission, in the Shiloh National Park. The following extract from Mr. Reid's letter speaks for itself:

"I should like to ask this society to consider if it does not yet owe a duty to itself and to its honored dead. Official publications have only recently come to my knowledge in which, aside from personal errors that need not now be noticed, there appears a strange distortion of facts as to when the several parts of the Army of the Ohio became engaged with the enemy on the 6th and 7th of April, 1862. An old book of my own, 'Ohio in the War,' printed long before the official reports were accessible, is quoted as one authority for these statements; but in some few cases I have been able to collate the official reports nor with the official reports nor with themselves, and the time when certain regiments went into action is set down on the very monuments the state have erected on the spot three or four hours after they had been hotly engaged and the field had been well regained. Whether this is due to a blundering effort to shield names which need no such treacherous props to their solid renown, and to do it at the expense of the Army of the Ohio, or whether it is due to mere incompetence, the effect is the same. Can your society in loyalty to itself and to its martyrs on that field permit these misrepresentations to stand?"

In consequence of the receipt of the above letter, a resolution was passed that the corresponding secretary forward copies of the same to the governor of Ohio and the Secretary of War, requesting them to take measures to test the accuracy of the inscriptions that have been challenged.

Brought Back Pipe. After a separation of thirty-eight years, Abraham Allen, a prominent citizen of Maynard, Mass., and one of the leading members of Isaac Davis post, G. A. R., shook the hand of his old chum, John Welch of Los Angeles, Cal. Allen and Welch served through the war as members of the old Thirtieth Massachusetts regiment. Mr. Allen in company B, while Mr. Welch was in company H.

The two men were the closest of friends during their term of enlistment, but had not met since they were mustered out in 1865. Mr. Welch enlisted from Cambridge and went west at the close of the war. During the campaign in Virginia Mr. Welch lost his pipe in an engagement, and was presented with one that Mr. Allen had to spare. On their meeting Mr. Welch had the identical pipe in his possession; the two friends enjoyed a smoke from it while talking over old times.

Vicksburg a Grand Prize. With Vicksburg was surrendered the largest force of men and guns ever known in the history of warfare, a record which was exceeded only by the Germans when they forced Bazaine to yield the fortress of Metz in the Franco-Prussian war. Brown gives the figures of Grant's capture of more than 42,000 men, 65,000 stand of arms and 165 cannon, large and small. Grant found there 25,000 stand of English Enfield rifles, which were at once turned over to the union troops to take the place of the inferior guns they had been using.

Battlefield Under the Hammer. Commissioners recently sold at public auction the famous battlefield of Gaines's Mill, near Cold Harbor, Hanover county, Va. There is still standing a portion of the brick mill around which the fight raged between Stonewall Jackson's men and the Northern troops under Gen. Fitz John Porter in June, 1862. Four thousand of the Union men were killed and about two thousand wounded or taken prisoners, while the Confederates had about eight thousand killed and wounded. The fight at Gaines's Mill was the second of the seven days' battles which marked the close of McClellan's insular campaign.

Don't Bolt Food.

Many serious maladies are due to bolting food. This bad habit is not only liable to difficulty of digestion, but it favors excessive eating. Each morsel of food should be chewed until its flavor is no longer perceptible, when it will be almost automatically swallowed and digested quickly and comfortably.

The morbid craving for food, which is a common symptom, is often dispelled by leisurely and elaborate mastication.

Break It Gently.

Richard Le Gallienne spends much of his time in New York. He affects a decidedly poetical fashion in his hair, which calls for a sparing use of the shears. Near his lodgings is a German barber shop, where he frequently drops in to have his shoes polished, but never for tonsorial attention, much to the disgust of the proprietor, who is possessed of the true barber hair-dressing instinct. The other day as the poet left, after one of his usual visits, a customer heard the barber say to the boy:

"See here, Fritz, der next time dot shentlemans comes in to get his shine I wants you to say somedings to him about dot shameless hair he got. Doan get fresh, and make some of fenses—shust hint delicate. Say 'Boss, you look like a shakessaws with dot hair; why doan you git him cut already?'"

The Simple Dish That Keeps One Vigorous and Well Fed.

When the doctor takes his own medicine and the grocer eats the food he recommends some confidence comes to the observer.

A Grocer of Ossian, Ind., had a practical experience with food worth anyone's attention.

He says: "Six years ago I became so weak from stomach and bowel trouble that I was finally compelled to give up all work in my store, and in fact all sorts of work, for about four years. The last year I was confined to the bed nearly all of the time, and much of the time unable to retain food of any sort on my stomach. My bowels were badly constipated continuously and I lost in weight from 150 pounds down to 88 pounds."

"When at the bottom of the ladder I changed treatment entirely and started in on Grape-Nuts and cream for nourishment. I used absolutely nothing but this for about three months. I slowly improved until I got out of bed and began to move about."

"I have been improving regularly and now in the past two years have been working about fifteen hours a day in the store and never felt better in my life."

"During these two years I have never missed a breakfast of Grape-Nuts and cream, and often have it two meals a day, but the entire breakfast is always made of Grape-Nuts and cream alone."

"Since commencing the use of Grape-Nuts I have never used anything to stimulate the action of the bowels, a thing I had to do for years, but this food keeps me regular and in fine shape, and I am growing stronger and heavier every day."

"My customers, naturally, have been interested and I am compelled to answer a great many questions about Grape-Nuts."

"Some people would think that a simple dish of Grape-Nuts and cream would not carry one through to the noonday meal, but it will and in the most vigorous fashion."

SUNSHINE AND SHADE

DUE PROPORTION OF BOTH IN MARRIED LIFE.

Writer in New York Weekly Tells Some Wholesome Truths and Gives Good Advice—Differences in the Household Best Kept From Friends.

Married life is not all made up of sunshine and peace. Shadows will sometimes darken the domestic horizon; the sun will often hide behind a cloud which apparently has no silver lining. But don't fret over it. Make up your mind to begin again. Take a clean, new leaf in your book of experience, and try to forget the blots and emasures on the last one. Above all things, preserve sacredly the privacies of your house, heart and married life.

No good is gained by imparting to relatives or friends the sorrows and disappointments you endure, because, sooner or later, you are sure to regret making such a confidence.

There are few friends who can be trusted with the secrets of your daily life; there are few who will not whisper the story of your marital difficulties to some "dear, confidential friend," and soon your private affairs will be freely discussed by all your acquaintances and commented upon without stint, furnishing food for gossip over many a tea table. Build your own quiet world, not allowing your dearest earthly friend to be the confidant of aught that concerns your domestic peace.

Let moments of alienation, if they occur—and they often do—be headed at once. Never let the sun go down seeing you at variance with each other. Women cling to men, lean upon them for protection, care and love. If a man would have a woman do him homage, he must be manly in every sense; a true gentleman, ready at all times to treat his wife's wishes with deference and respect, because she is a woman. Such deportment, with noble principles, a good mind, energy and industry, will win any woman in the land who is worth winning.

Women all have their faults, and sometimes they are very provoking ones. But with certain virtues are always coupled certain disagreeable characteristics, and we must make up our minds to accept the bitter with the sweet. For instance, every husband in the land desires a clean, comfortable, well arranged abode, but he seldom thinks to praise his wife for her excellent regulation of the household machinery; and if she requests him, on entering, to use the doormat or footscurper, he is apt to give vent to an impatient expression.

But what a mortification it would be to him if his house were in such a state of dirt and disorder as to cause unkind remarks from the neighbors! It is a poor return when a wife has made everything bright and fresh, to see her husband unwilling to take a little pains to keep it so, or hear him object with forcible language to being reminded of those small points which all men are apt to forget occasionally.

Don't worry about feminine extravagance and feminine untruth, young man. Be true to your wife, love her sincerely and frequently declare your affection, and gratification will surely tend to keep her a loyal, devoted wife.—Florence H. Birney, in New York Weekly.

Tearful Subjects.

Taking an illustration out of his own calling, Dr. Gunguis delivered by implication a stinging rebuke to a kind of histrionism of which Mrs. Leslie Carter, Miss Olga Netherland and Miss Clara Morris are leading exemplars, and to a kind of player who is esteemed by some people to be doing sound emotional work when he pumps up real tears.

"I've known," he said dryly, "preachers who cried so much that nobody else wanted to cry. A good man I will call John Biggs was one of these. When one of the elders heard of his assignment to a certain circuit he said musingly, 'Well, we'll be having a long wet spell soon.'"

The World is Mine.

For me the jamine buds unfold And silver daisies start the leaf. The crocus hears the sunset gold And the wild rose breathes for me I feel the sap through the bough returning. I share the skylark's transport fine, I know the fountain's wayward yearning, I love, and the world is mine!

I love, and thoughts that sometimes grieve From all the darkened and deceived I guess my spirit free. For soft the hours repeat one story, Sings the sea one rapt divine; No clouds arise all flushed with glory— I love, and the world is mine! —Florence Earle Coates.

Keeping Razors in Condition.

"A man who shaves himself ought to have at least two razors, and use these on alternate mornings; then, if his razors are all right, he will have but little trouble with them," said the barber. "It is also possible to stop a razor too much. It should not be stropped for more than half a minute before shaving, and care should be taken never to bear heavily on the blade while doing this. Let the razor rest lightly on the leather and the best results will be gained. After finishing a shave stop the razor once more for a few seconds and this will insure a much better condition for it."

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney Remedy, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of this paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and need attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root the great kidney and bladder remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root will set your whole system right, and the best proof of this is a trial.

DEAR SIR: I was in the Army, I had more or less kidney trouble, and within the past year it became so severe and complicated that I suffered everything and was much alarmed—my strength and power was fast leaving me. I saw an advertisement of Swamp-Root and wrote asking for advice. I began the use of the medicine and noted a decided improvement after taking Swamp-Root only a short time. I continued its use and am thankful to say I am entirely cured and strong. In order to be very sure about this, I had a doctor examine some of my water to-day and he pronounced it all right and in splendid condition. I know that your Swamp-Root is purely vegetable and does not contain any harmful drugs. Thanking you for my complete recovery and recommending Swamp-Root to all sufferers I am, Very truly yours, I. C. RICHARDSON.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but it promptly cures kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, worn-out feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, shallow complexion, or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTE.—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in this paper. The genuineness of this offer is guaranteed.

EVARTS SCORED ON HOAR. Had Pat Answer Ready for Wrathful Statesman.

He and Evarts were implacable enemies when it came to a passage of words, and the honors were about even. One day, however, toward the end of the New York senator's career Evarts came off with flying colors. He was chairman of the library committee and Hoar was a minor member. Evarts was lazy, and would not call his committee together from beginning to end of a session. A measure which Hoar was anxious to have brought up had been referred to the library committee, and there seemed doomed to sleep forever. Evarts when pleaded with would promise to call the committee to consider the measure and then forget all about it. At last one day toward the end of the session Hoar, annoyed and irascible, met Evarts in the cloak room.

"Whenever you are ready to call a meeting of the library committee," he said, with biting sarcasm, "I wish you would notify my executors."

"I shall be most happy to notify your executors," said Evarts, with a smile.

An Honest Opinion.

Mineral, Idaho, Nov. 14th.—(Special).—That a sure cure has been discovered for those sciatic pains that make so many lives miserable, is the firm opinion of Mr. D. S. Colson, a well known resident of this place, and he does not hesitate to say that cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. The reason Mr. Colson is so firm in his opinion is that he had those terrible pains and is cured. Speaking of the matter he says:

"I am only too happy to say Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me lots of good. I had awful pains in my hip so I could hardly walk. Dodd's Kidney Pills stopped it entirely. I think they are a grand medicine."

All sciatic and Rheumatic pains are caused by Uric Acid in the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys, and healthy kidneys strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood. With the cause removed there can be no Rheumatism or Sciatica.

It's an ill stomach that can't arbo just before it is time for a boy to start to school.
